

Pan Arab Rhinology Society
PARS NEWS

Report on the 24th Rhino Egypt - 9th Pan Arab Rhinology Society Conference March 8 – 9, 2018, Dusit Thani

Report by Prof. Mohamed Elsharnouby – Ain Shams University

The 24th rhino Egypt meeting was conducted from 8th to 10th of march 2018 in Dusit Thani, fifth settlement, Egypt. The meeting was arranged by Egyptian rhinology society in association with the Pan Arab Rhinology Society and organized by ICOM.

As known, Rhino Egypt is the biggest rhinology meeting in the Middle East and the most attended. This year it was no exception with over one thousand and five hundreds attendees from Egypt, and more than 85 from abroad. The meeting was conducted in 3 halls and an exhibition area, all of which were filled with enthusiastic oto-Rhino-Laryngologist, facio-plastic surgeons, maxillofacial, sleep disorder surgeons and skull base surgeons.

The meeting included 126 lectures presented by experts from Egypt, Arab countries, Europe and Asia, in most recent topics in rhinology, skull base, rhinoplasty, sleep apnea and maxillofacial surgery. In addition, junior researches had their chance to present their work in this prestigious meeting.

There were four instructional courses and 6 onstage cadaveric dissection workshops on basic, advanced paranasal sinus endoscopy and endoscopic skull base surgery.

In the closing session, a ceremony was held to honor the Egyptian pioneers in rhinology as well as both Arabs and international Invited guests to show appreciation to their efforts in continues medical education.

Pre and post-congress cadaveric dissection courses in basic and advanced endoscopic sinus surgery, skull base surgery and rhinoplasty were held with 24 trainee over 12 stations each with an instructor and stepwise approach was demonstrated.

Pan Arab Rhinology Society
PARS NEWS

The congress highlighted the importance of continuous medical education and conveying experiences about recent advances in tools, techniques and guidelines in treating different rhinological aspects. The delegates expressed their gratitude for the effort done in organization of the event, the well-organized updated scientific content as well as the Good reception and hospitality over their stay promising to return next year.

The date of next year's RhinoEgypt 25 conference in March 7 – 9, 2019. It will celebrate 25th year i.e. the silver jubilee.

